PRESS RELEASE

Rochester, N.Y., February 26, 2009 – Bergmann Associates has been awarded the contract for the conceptual design for the renovation of two major buildings at Brookhaven National Laboratory on Long Island. The $35 Million project includes the complete renovation of the three story Chemistry and Physics Buildings. Bergmann competed against several other larger national architectural firms to win the job based on qualifications.

Brookhaven is a globally respected national laboratory operated by Brookhaven Science Associates for the U.S. Department of Energy (DOE). Six Nobel Prize winners have been awarded for discoveries made at the Lab. Brookhaven has a staff of approximately 3,000 scientists, engineers, technicians and support staff and over 4,000 guest researchers annually.

“This is not only a nice win for Bergmann but also opens doors for additional laboratory, clean room and manufacturing design work,” said Kevin Curran, Sr. Project Manager for Bergmann.
